A Good Deal in a Name.

There is a good deal in a name after all. Our reporter, in describing the ornamental support of the speakers at the Government meeting, wrote among others the name of Mr. Tom Gorry, the well known Fort street decorator, but the printer spelled it Tom Gowdy, and so it was printed. Now, Tom Gowdy is an express man, who could not be persuaded to go upon a platform to back up the Government candidates, and naturally that gentleman feels agrieved to think that it should have been published to the world that he had been seen to such bad business. We admit the libellous nature of the article and hasten to make this explanation. The mistake was purely typographical—Tom Gorry was the gentleman whose name should have been mentioned.

Never More Before.

THE COAL SUPPLY SHORT IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Shameless Louisiana—A Committee Reports Favorably on the Lottery Scheme—A Portland Elopement—A Woman Who Smuggled Silk in Her Bustle.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—J. W. Harrison, the coal broker, in his weekly circular issued to-day says: The arrival of coal this week has been, from coast mines, 8789 tons; from Australia, 8051 tons. The quantity on hand of Australian is very small, and full prices are demanded and paid for lots here in the yard, and for cargoes to arrive within the next three or four months. After that time there will be full sufficiency for all our requirements. The Wellington Company have not yet recommenced work, and probably will not before the end of this month. They have ordered the Wellington and Commodore forward to bring down coal which has been already mined.

An Embezzler Indicted.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 14.—Edward W. Doan, formerly book-keeper in the Los Angeles National Bank, was brought back from Salt Lake City today having been indicted by the grand jury for embezzlement. His embezzlement amounted to about $2,500. Doane was discharged by Commissioner Van Dyke in April 1890 when it was discovered that he had made a number of fraudulent entries.

A Jolly Actor.

NEW YORK, June 14.—A Sun special from Newburgh, N. Y., says: Fritz Emmet, the actor, who is stopping at the Storm King House, Cornwall, drove to Newburgh yesterday afternoon in a buckboard. He was accompanied by three ladies and a little girl. Fritz was in a jolly mood and attracted much attention. Among the places visited was Mrs. Gartison's toy shop. Here Fritz purchased a doll for a little girl, and when he got it he put it in his arms and sang "Go to Sleep My Baby," the song that has done so much to give him a national reputation, accompanying it with his usual stage swing. One of the women with him is said to be a young actress who was named as co-respondent in his wife's divorce suit.

Reported Favorably.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—The committee of the legislature to which the lottery bill was referred decided by a vote of 6 to 4 to report it favorably. Two propositions were made by Mr. Dreyfus, a member of the committee who is against the lottery. First that the company pledge itself to abolish daily drawings upon which the policy of the tickets are based, and which it is said impoverished the poorer classes of people, and that it confine itself to a monthly drawing, a large majority of tickets for which are sold outside of Louisana and which did little harm here; and secondly, that the lottery give $2,000,000 a year instead of $1,700,000 to go to public schools; $700,000 to a levee; $300,000 to charities, $150,000 to drainage of New Orleans; $10,000 to Confederate soldiers home; $50,000 to pensions to Confederate veterans, and $90,000 to insane asylums. The first proposition was rejected by a vote of six to three; all lottery men opposing it; the second by a vote of seven to three, Mr. Wells, of Richland, an ex-lottery man, voting against it on the ground that he was opposed to lottery whether one, two or ten millions were paid for the privilege. There will, in consequence, be two reports to the legislature.

The Senate bribery committee has reported that it can do nothing, as its members cannot agree how the investigation should be made.

The joint Democratic caucus has been called to consider the lottery question.

Did it in Her Bustle.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Among the passengers who arrived by the Hamburg steamship Columbia this morning were Mr. and Mrs. George Klick. The latter attracted much attention by reason of her huge bustle. Custom Inspectress Ellis watched her and thought she acted strangely. Accordingly she invited her to accompany her to her private apartments and submit to an examination. Mrs. Klick consented rather reluctantly, reluctance due to the fact that twenty-five yards of fine silk was concealed in her bustle.

Crow Indians Hostile.

CHEYENNE, June 14.—The Crow Indians are hopping mad over the theft from them of 200 of their best ponies. They are in pursuit of the freebooters and blood will flow if the chase is successful.

A Horrible Tragedy.

ALBANY, Or., June 12.—News was received here to-day of a terrible tragedy enacted this morning seven miles northeast of Lebanon. For about two years Grant Aurenspaugh has resided with his family, consisting of a wife and two children, in a country home near his parents, having moved there from California. A sister of Mrs. Aurenspaugh has been residing at the home of the Aurenspaughs for some time. Suspicious circumstances led Mrs. Aurenspaugh to believe that her husband was too intimate with her sister.

About 8 o'clock this morning, missing her sister from her bed and hearing a noise in her sister's room, Mrs. Aurenspaugh hastened to her room and entered, when she found her sister sitting in her husband's lap in a chair, both in their night robes.

"This is not the first time this has happened," she said, "and I am going to put a stop to it."

Producing a revolver, she aimed it at her husband and fired; the ball entering his breast. He fell to the floor, while her sister fled from the room and out into the yard. Mrs. Aurenspaugh then placed the revolver to her own head and ended her troubles by shooting herself in the head. She died after a short time.

Mr. Aurenspaugh lived several hours, and confessed to the above facts before several neighbors and men from Lebanon.

Justice Wallace was called, and with a coroner's jury found a verdict substantially as stated above.

Yesterday Mrs. Aurenspaugh wrote to her mother in California charging her sister with working against her and trying to break up her home, and there seems little doubt that Mrs. Aurenspaugh had ground for her act.

The affair caused great excitement throughout the community. The participants in the tragedy were quiet, unassuming people, always remaining at home and associating with but few persons.

Grass Fires.

MERCED, Cal., June 13.—Fire yesterday burned over twelve thousand acres of grass land.

A Missoula Sensation.

MISSOULA, June 12.—Another sensation was created here this evening by the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Sands, the result of abortion performed by a local doctor. Mrs. Sand's husband, who is a brick building contractor, has been in Spokane Falls for the past five months. The result of the coroner's inquest, which was held this evening, cannot be learned, though it is understood that the physician will be placed under arrest to-night.

Ninety-six Days Without Food.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, June 12.—The death of Thomas Sutton yesterday ends a fast probably without a parallel. A year and a half ago the boy, then 14 years of age, fell from a butcher's wagon and hurt his spine. About four months ago paralysis set in, his stomach became affected, and for ninety-six days, ending at the time of his death, not a morsel of food passed his lips. For a while a glass full of wine was given each twenty-four hours. His stomach soon refused even this nourishment. Then soda water was substituted, and for the last thirty days only pure water has been used to moisten his lips.

At the time of his death he weighed a trifle over fifty pounds. His shrunken skin barely covered his bones, and he presented a terrible picture of emaciation. Through all this time young Sutton retained his consciousness and recognized his friends and relatives.

A Portland Elopement.

PORTLAND, June 12.—Dr. John Wells, the youngest son of Dr. G. M. Wells, of this city, eloped yesterday with pretty Miss Mabel Houghton, only daughter of Rev. Rose C. Houghton, pastor of the Grace Methodist church, one of the most fashionable churches in the city. They were married in Vancouver. They then returned to the city and went to their homes and packed their effects. Dr. Houghton and wife attended a party last night and when they were leaving the house their daughter bade them good bye. Shortly after the young couple left for Pendleton.

The first intimation Dr. Houghton had of the elopement was when young Wells' brother went to the house where he was and told him of it. Dr. Houghton knew that young Wells was paying attentions to his daughter and objected. The Wells family knew of the contemplated elopement beforehand, and did not discourage it. Dr. Houghton intended to take his daughter east in a few days to put her in a school. Wells is a bright young fellow and well fixed financially.

Blown From the Main Yard.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—The British ship Enderas, Capt. Donaldson, 133 days from Liverpool, reports that for 21 days she beat off Cape Horn wrestling with a hurricane. Her experience was much the same as the Buteshire which arrived a few days ago from London. The seas broke over her, carrying away two boats from the forward house and stripping the deck of the loose tackle. On April 11th a hurricane blew in all its fury for sixteen hours and resulted fatally to one of the ship's hands. David Marshall, a Scotch apprentice, 17 years old, was on the main yard when the squall struck him and blew him overboard. No sign was seen of him again.

More Earthquakes.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 14.—A slight earthquake shock of about ten seconds duration was experienced here at 2.30 a.m. Its course, which was apparently from north to south, gave out a low rumbling sound. No injury was done, although windows rattled and buildings vibrated. The phenomena occurred at a time when the weather was hot and cloudy.

Killed Before Their Father's Eyes.

WEBSTER, Mass., June 14.—Aloise and Annie, aged 8 and 12 years respectively, daughters of Mr. Nelker, of Wilsonville, Conn., was struck by a train on the Perryville state line bridge yesterday and killed. Their father was fishing off the bridge and was also struck by the engine but was not seriously injured.

Another Paper Gone Under.

UTICA, N. Y., June 14.—This morning Ellis H. Roberts & Co., proprietors of the Utica Morning Herald, applied for the appointment of a receiver. The amount of indebtedness named is $140,000. It has been an open secret for some time that the Herald has been in straightened financial circumstances and owed large sums of borrowed money. The failure was not due to pressure from any particular creditors, but because the credit was exhausted. It is understood that an attempt will be made to reorganize the company, the principal creditors taking the stock. The largest proprietor is Hon. Ellis Roberts, the well known Assistant-Treasurer of the United States, with headquarters at the sub-treasury in New York.

Vote Sellers Discharged.

PORTLAND, June 12.—Over a dozen persons were arrested on election day by Deputy United States marshals, on charges of bribery and illegal voting. Some were examined by the United States commissioner and discharged, and to-day the United States grand jury dismissed the remainder on the ground of insufficiency of evidence. The grand jury adopted a resolution deploring the wholesale disregard of the election laws in relation to bribery, etc., and the evident inefficiency of said laws, and recommending that the matter be brought to the attention of the next legislature.

HOME AND FOREIGN.

A LONDON, ONT., MURDERER HANGED.

Eyraud, the Parkham Murderer, on His Way Home—Trouble for the Czar—The Germany Military Bill Before the German Reichstag.

LONDON, June 13.—General Sliecerlstoff, special agent of Russian police, has arrived in Paris for the purpose of obtaining information concerning the nihilists recently arrested there. He expressed himself as confident that the prisoners were connected with the most atrocious and dangerous conspiracy against the life of the Czar and the institutions of the Russian Government that nihilism had yet organized. He had positive information that the French contingent of nihilists were in collusion with those in Russia and Switzerland to murder the Czar and precipitate simultaneous outbreaks in different political centers.

The Connaughts Sail for England.

QUEBEC, June 12.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught sailed for England on the Sardinian to-day.

The Load too Heavy.

BERLIN, June 12.—The committee of the Reichstag on the army bill to-day passed the paragraph in the measure prescribing the basis for a military function. Windthorst, leader of the clerical party, declared that he would vote for the bill, as he did not consider the moment opportune to attempt a test of party strength. He announced at the same time that he would lay on the table in the Reichstag a motion suggesting that the government should desist from its intention to compel all men capable of bearing arms to perform military duties, should abolish the septennate, should fix the strength of the army annually at the time the budget was submitted, and the term of service for the infantry should be fixed at two years.

Richter proposed that the peace effective footing be fixed annually. The minister of war replied that the constitution implied the right of the emperor to fix the effective, and the yearly fixture could not be conceded.

The Reichstag to-day adopted a grant of 4,500,000 marks on account of East Africa.

The Law took its Course.

LONDON, Ont., June 14.—Henry Smith, who murdered his wife on February 18th, was hanged at 8:10 this morning.

Asiatic Cholera.

MADRID, June 14.—Information has been received here that at Hoscis de Rugat, in the Province of Valencia, 14 deaths from Asiatic cholera occurred. It is believed that the pestilence was brought into the province by the soldiers who returned from the North African garrison.

Eyraud on Board Ship.

HAVANA, June 14.—Preparations are being made for Eyraud's departure on board ship. He will be placed in a cage made of steel bars open on all sides containing nothing but a chair and two guards who will be kept by him constantly. The guard will have a steel wire strait jacket to put on him in case he does violence to himself. The cage is modelled much after those used for transporting Nihilists to Siberia.

Trouble for the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 13.—The government has received information that a new movement against the life of the Czar is contemplated. The guards in the palace and at all approaches have been doubled. A number of arrests have been made of persons who are suspected of being connected with the movement.

A Lady Wins Honors.

LONDON, June 14.—In classical tripos examination at Cambridge to-day, Miss Margaret Alford took the first honors. Miss Alford is the neice of the late Dean Alford and her preliminary studies were conducted under the supervision of her father the famous preacher.

They Stole the Proofs.

LONDON, June 14.—The St. James Gazette says that a complete set of proofs of Henry M. Stanley's forthcoming work, "The Darkest Africa," was obtained in a mysterious manner by some person who offered copies to one English paper and two papers published in the Colonies. The copies were accepted by the papers but the publication of the matter was thwarted by the issue of a circular by the house which is to publish the book, warning any person against publishing the work and notifying any one who did so that he would be held responsible

TORY PARTY A WRECK.

The Government Land Purchase Bill is About to be Dropped.

LONDON, June 12.—At a caucus of the Conservative party at the Carlton club to-day, Lord Salisbury announced that in order to cope with business, bills which reach an advance stage during one session will be resumed at the next session at the same stage.

Several Conservatives condemned such a course, saying it would inaugurate a bad system. After lengthy discussion the caucus separated without adopting a formal resolution on the subject. The Cabinet afterwards held a meeting in Smith's private rooms to discuss the matter.

Information comes from a reliable source that the government has decided to abandon the land purchase bill for the present session. Unionists prefer that the licensing bill be dropped. Thirty Conservatives have revolted, being dissatisfied with Secretary Matthews, action relative to Chief of Police Munro.

At the Carlton Club meeting Sir Henry spoke of the fatigue of parliamentary work, and proposed a resolution that more energy money bills be debated after a certain date, the others to be suspended until the following session. This plan would have the advantage of giving the House of Lords more time to discuss bills brought before it.

Smith intimated that his health would not permit him to face the labors of the autumn session.

CANNOT COMPETE WITH B. C.

Quarrymen Across the Lineday that They Cannot Compete Against B. C. Granite.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The state owners of the granite quarries in Washington State have written and telegraphed the representative from the state requesting that an effort be made to secure an increased duty on granite. The McKinley bill makes the duty $1 per ton, and the request is made that the figures be increased to $2 per ton. The claim is made that with a duty of $1 granite from the quarries of British Columbia can be sent into the state by water transportation at such rates as to make it unprofitable to work the quarries on this side of the line, which depend on railroad transportation to reach a market.

BISHOP BRONDEL AT ROME.

He Will Bring an Address From the Pope to the Faithful of America.

NEW YORK, June 14.—A private letter from Rome says: Rt. Rev. Bishop Brondel of Helena, Montana, who is now visiting the vatican will take back to the United States an important address from the holy father to the faithful of America. The bishop has had several interviews with the Pope in course of which the latter has bitterly lamented the persecution to which he was subjected by the Italian authorities which he claims is on an increase. He feels very keenly the fact that for twelve years he has been compelled to remain within the boundaries of the vatican, but denies the report that he is contemplating accepting a refuge elsewhere and says that he proposes to remain and defend the rights of the holy see to his last breath.

ALL AFTER AFRICA.

Both England and France Will Send Expeditions into the Dark Continent.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Baron Michael Strauss arrived from France to-day. He to'd of a big scheme by which General Boulanger intends to capture Africa. "Since Stanley told the world of the rich resources of Africa," said the Baron, "all the European nations have been making efforts to acquire some territory in the Dark Continent. Lord Salisbury has formulated a plan by which the Congo Free State and equatorial provinces shall be united under one government and controlled by England and Belgium. The King of Belgium should receive as much credit for the discoveries in Africa as Stanley himself as he has been the chief supporter of the Stanley expeditions, and has contributed large sums of funds yearly. Now he finds that his exchequer is low and he cannot continue to work alone. When the king came to the conclusion that his financial resources were too limited to carry out his cherished plans, he entered into partnership with England. Now it is proposed to send out a complete expedition under the command of Stanley, England and Belgium to share the expenses and gains. While this has been talked of, France has not been idle, and a well-equipped expedition will leave the French shores for Africa under the command of General Boulanger. This proposed enterprise is almost an assured fact, as advices have recently been received concerning it from a reliable person. Boulanger will establish a line of trading posts from the Congo River to the big lakes. Another expedition will put up a chain of posts in East Africa and unite with the other line. If Boulanger can carry out this vast scheme, the interior of Africa will come under French control. England and Belgium have a similar campaign outlined, and there is a grim possibility of a serious clash in the race for the conquest and development of Africa.

TRYING TO SETTLE THE TROUBLE

Tully Boyce Speaks at a Meeting of the Federated Trades in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—At a meeting of the Council of the Federated Trades last night Tully Boyce, President of the Miners and Laborers Protective Association of Vancouver Island, British Columbia, introduced and explained to the Council the causes of the strike in the Wellington coal mines, Wellington. The company, Boyce stated, had refused to reduce as other mining companies had done, the hours of labor from nine and a half to eight hours. The refusal, it is claimed, is arbitrary, as the miners are paid 70 cents a ton for the coal they mine. The miners, Boyce said, were refused as a body an audience by the mining company management. As miners were in a greater number of cases poor, they were driven to desperate straits being forced to trade at the Wellington company's stores which charged from 50 to 75 per cent more than other stores. Miners horses were in a majority of cases mere hovels, but the condition of miners was made even worse by their being evicted from these by the company. Over 700 miners are locked out and there is no prospects of a speedy settlement. The matter was referred to an executive committee, who, together with Boyce, instructed to call on Dunsmuir & Co., to try and arrange a settlement of the trouble.

THE PROCEEDINGS AS RECORDED BY THE HISTORIAN.

A Somewhat Remarkable and Unorthodox Temperance Oration by Jack—A Wanderer's Life—The Civil Engineer Tells a Story and the Company see the Point.

VI.

TEMPERANCE ORATION—A WANDERER'S LIFE.

The proceedings commenced with a temperance oration by Jack.

"My dear young friends: Let me beseech you in endearing terms, by aid of all the most emphatic cuss words known to science, to refrain from getting drunk. I do not urge you to be the dear erring brother of a Temperance Society, because I devoutly believe that they are a very questionable family, and would corrupt your morals. I dimly remember once returning from a temperance meeting with the secretary of the Lodge; and it was very cold, and so late that every good and law-abiding bar-room must be approached only by occult signals at the back door. The said secretary decoyed me into a low 'dive,' where we had to drink in whispers. I was not then, what I afterwards became, a confirmed and hopeless abstainer. In his blushing confusion the Secretary forgot to bring away the book of proceedings of the lodge; and, as he piously expressed it, the volume fell into the hands of the ungodly. If the brethren were all as full as the Secretary that night I don't know how they explained their symptoms at home.

"As to the limits you may go I will not prescribe. A friend of mine used to often speak tenderly of being 'half cut,' and I asked for a definition. That night I found him vainly trying to save himself from falling up at the ground. He looked up solemnly and said, 'Now, Jack, I'm just about half cut.'

"Getting drunk is a deplorably bad habit, my infant friends. It derranges the digestion worse than Epsom salts, and is awfully expensive when you make a habit of it. Let me implore you to be moderate in all things, and never get more than half drunk except on very joyful occasions."

"Well, for my part," remarked the Itinerant Photographer, very positively, "I can either take it or leave it alone."

At this point I looked up and saw that Jack was for once in dead earnest. He seemed actually terrific, as he stood trembling with suppressed passion, his eyes flashing ominously upon his victim.

"I once knew," he said, "an old beast who was never contented unless he had the horrors. His face was like a nightmare. He lay dying in torments, a parson by his side talking about his condition and trying to save what was not already damned of him. Just before the last paroxysm came which finished him, so that between horrors and his other diseases he died screaming, he said confidentially to the parson, 'For my part I can take it or leave it alone.'"

Here the Itinerant Photographer left.

"That's a devil's lie," explained Jack, "that's always on the lips of a sot. When a man says that, or talks about 'sowing his wild oats,' I am always divided by two appetites,—the first is to punch his head, the second is to officiate at his funeral."

Much more Jack said, calling up pictures full of lurid horror, too strongly delivered for repetition here; so vivid, so horrible, and so grotesque as to make a much stronger impression than ever a sermon did on such a crowd. He broke off at last with a hoarse laugh that made me pity him from the bottom of my heart, without knowing why. Someone struck the keynote of our minds by saying, "You'd oughter turn temperance orator, Jack."

"Yes," growled Jack, "with you as 'awful example.' Well, it would be no worse than dispensing damnation to all fools in congress assembled."

The meeting would have no doubt broken up had not Jack suddenly changed his mood, and, accompanied by a banjo, brilliantly played by one of the surveyors, struck up our favorite song.

A WANDERER'S LIFE.

Let others seek the office stool,
Be slaves to the plough, the school,
The Judge's wig, the parson's gown,
The merchant's smile, the monarch's crown;
The learned rogues have fortunes made;
Great lives ill-set on little gain
Have lived a thousand years in vain,
CHORUS—'Tis manlier to dare or die
Than bound in trades to be;
(Repeat) I care for none of them, no not I—
A wanderer's life for me!

Give me the hardest path in life,
Oh give me danger, pain and strife,
But let me traverse land and sea
Strong in unbounded liberty,
Give me to ride the ocean's wave
The world my salooon and my grave,
To be among the valiant slain
Were better death than sordid gain!
CHORUS—'Tis manlier to dare or die
Than bound in trades to be;
(Repeat) I care for none of them, no not I—
A wanderer's life for me.

The remainder of these evening's proceedings must be reserved for another number. It may be noted that very little lemon cordial was called for at this meeting.

VII.

THE WIPER'S HORNPIPE—A SEA YARN WITH IMPROVEMENTS.

The little wiper next executed a hornpipe to the immense delight of the company. Such a hopping and twinkling, such a hearty stamping and snapping of fingers, such a procession all over the floor of a pair of very big boots and such reckless racing at sixty miles an hour schedule time over the banjo strings had never been heard before. Jack let himself down himself in a pot of cider when it was done, and it was only by that and a very profuse grooming with a big red handkerchief that the wiper escaped igniting like a fusilier match.

The civil engineer, Mackie—he with the banjo, a big Nova Scotian—did anybody ever see a small Nova Scotian?—related the following story which nobody could be induced to believe:

"While my father was at sea he was at one time skipper on one of a line of three ships owned in Halifax. Two of those ships were wrecked in the same place at different times, on the New Foundland coast. This was a bay round which swept a tremendous ocean current. On the far side another current came from beyond a point of rocks, meeting the first and crossing a whirlpool. In fine weather both ships were caught in the big current, drifted helplessly round the bay, and when they came to the whirlpool were dashed against the cliffs and destroyed. My father was given very special warnings by his owners about this part of his course, for the current began a long way from shore and right in the track. The firm had lost pretty heavily and the fate of the crews had so weighed upon the partners that they had a great dread of any fresh misfortune.

"When I was only a lad father took me on one of his voyages for my health, and had, as usual, to pass along the Newfoundland coast to reach one of the Island ports. How well I remember that day as we sat at dinner in the cabin. It was a dead calm and the sea was as smooth as glass with a rolling swell on it. The old man was talking to the mate about the Current, saying that we were lying quite near its course, which changed with the tides a little; which made him anxious for a breeze to spring up lest he too should get caught. They went on talking about the prospect of making port the next day, and I was idly listening to them and watching the door of a berth opposite swing creaking at the heave of the swell, when suddenly there was the head of the second mate in the companion hatch, and he yelled down to father to come on deck. We tumbled up the step head over heels, father as white as a ghost. The second mate was intently watching the coast line through his his glass and talking lowly and hurriedly. There was not a breath stirring the sails; or rippling the water and we lay rolling on the swell as if we were anchored. "My God!" hissed the mate, "we are moving four knots an hour as I live." On the port quarter loomed the cliffs, beyond a broad shallow bay, and beyond that a cape against the sky. Father called out for sweeps; but only two could be found. Then out, with the boats, a hawser made fast aboard, and the crew, except those an the sweeps, straining like mad at the oars. But it was no good. We only seemed to be drifting faster, and made scarcely any way seaward. Just as we were sweeping into the bay under the full force of the current I saw a line of dark water aft. In a trice the hands were aboard, the boats run up, the yards trimmed, and we were under all plain sail in a decent breeze. So the old ship went round the bay, her head seaward, making four miles leeway to one on her course. Somehow we just managed to weather the cape, and no more. The tail of the other current swept us seaward as the wind died out again, and we waited fully an hour for the next breath. When the ship cleared that cape the crew gave three cheers and the old man ordered grog for all hands. Then he went down into his cabin and said his prayers."

"Next time you tell that yarn," said Jack, "introduce a sea serpent, harpoon the beast with your grappeling irons, or your best bower anchor—whatever that is—just as you are about to be dashed to pieces on the cape, bend your hawser to the bowsprit, make the animal tow you out to sea, follow it up with a marine combat in which the monster swallows the cook, the galley, the foremast and a few sundries, and gets poisoned by the contents of the pot in which the men's dinner was stewing, tow the corpse into port, realize a tidy sum for salvage, hire the skeleton, if there is any, for exhibition, and make a fortune by advertising the skin as a sticking plaster warranted to cure all known diseases. Our friend," he concluded, addressing the company, "seems to be under a moral obligation not to tell the truth."

THE EDITOR AND THE SINGLE TAXISTS.

TO THE EDITOR.—A writer has remarked "the next best thing to helping a good cause is to oppose it." The Colonist's misrepresentation of the Single Tax has done more towards advancing the discussion and spread of its principles than the most ardent advocate of that reform could have expected. The effort it made to prejudice the voters against Beaven and Grant for their even partial indorsement of the Single Tax, has resulted in a surprise to the Colonist's followers; and while the editor is smarting from the blow of the returned boomerang, the faces of the Single Taxers are wreathed with smiles of calm and deep satisfaction.

ALL TROUBLES PAST.

VISIONS TYPICAL OF THE HEAVENLY GLORY THAT IS TO BE.

Dr. Talmage's Views Upon the Rainbow and the New Jerusalem as Seen by St. John—The Most Beautiful Things of Earth Are but Faint Types.

BROOKLYN, June 8.—This is sacramental and baptismal day with the Tabernacle congregation, an occasion of especial impressiveness. The children were baptized before the sermon, and the sacrament administered after sermon. The subject of Dr. Talmage's discourse was, "All troubles past," and the text Revelation iv. 3: "There was a rainbow round about the throne." Following is the sermon:

As, after a night of fearful tempest at sea, one ship, more stanch than another, rides on undamaged among the fragments of spars and hulks that float about, so old Noah's ark, at the close of the deluge, floats on over the wreck of a dead world. Looking out of the window of the ark, you see the planks of houses, and the sheaves of wheat, and the carcasses of cattle and the corpses of men. No tower is left to tell the burial; no mourners to form in line of procession; no ground in which to bury the dead. Sinking a line twenty-seven feet long, you just touch the tops of the mountains. Ghastliness and horror! The ark, instead of walking the sea, like a modern ship, in majesty and beauty, tosses helplessly; no helm to guide; no sail to set; no shore to steer for. Why protract the agony of the good people in such a craft, when they might in one dash of the wave have been put out of their misery?

HIS BOW IN THE CLOUD.

But at yonder spot in the horizon we see colors gathering in the sky. At just the opposite point in the horizon other colors are gathering. I find that they are the two buttresses of an arched bridge. The yellow, the red, the orange, the blue, the indigo, the violet, are mingled, and by invisible hands the whole structure is hung into the sky, and the ark has a triumphal arch to sail under. An Angel of Light swings his mast across the sky, and in the seven prismatic colors he paints with pencil of sunbeam the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature. God lifted up that great arched bridge and set it over his own head in the heaven. John saw it, for he says, "There was a rainbow round about the throne."

I notice that none but the people who were in the ark saw the rainbow. It cast its shadow clear down into the water where the people were buried, and lighted up the dead faces with a strange radiance, lest they could not see it. So only those who are at last found in Christ, the Ark, will see the overspanning glories of the throne. Hence you had better get into the ark! As you call your family out at the close of the shower to show them the sign in heaven, so I want you all at last to see the grander rainbow round about the throne. "Look there!" says Noah to his wife, "at that bow in the clouds; and, Shem and Japhet, look! look!—the green, the yellow, the red, and the orange!" I should not wonder if some of your own children in the good land should after a while cry out to you, "Look, father! look, mother! there is a rainbow round about the throne!" You had better get into the ark, with all your families, if you want to see it.

I notice also that the chief glory of God comes after the rain. No shower, no rainbow; no trouble, no brightness of Christian consolation. Weavers are sometimes, by reason of their work, dusty and rough in their apparel; and so it is the coarse clad tempest, whose hand and foot swing the shuttle, that weaves the rainbow. Many Christians are dull, and stupid, and useless because they have not had disaster enough to wake them up. The brightest scarf that heaven makes is thrown over the shoulders of the storm. You cannot make a thorough Christian life out of sunshine alone. There are some very dark hues in the ribbon of the rainbow; you must have in life the blue as well as the orange. Mingling all the colors of the former makes a white light; and it takes all the shades, and sadness, and vicissitudes of life to make the white luster of a pure Christian character.

GLORIFIED TEARS OF SORROW.

Your child asks you, "Father, what makes the rainbow?" and you say, "It is the sunlight striking through the rain drops." Therefore I wondered how there could be a rainbow in heaven, since there are no storms there; but then I conclude that that rainbow must be formed by the striking of heaven's sunlight through the falling tears of earthly sorrow. When we see a man overwhelmed with trouble, and his health goes, and his property goes, and his friends go, I say, "Now we shall see the glory of God in this good man's deliverance." As at Niagara Falls I saw, one day, ten rainbows spanning the awful plunge of the cataract, so over the abyss of the Christian's trial hover the rich hued wings of all the promises.

Longing that the most beautiful things of this world are to be preserved in heaven. When you see the last color fade out from the rainbow of earth, you need not feel sad, for you will see the rainbow round about the throne. That story about the world burning up has given me many a pang. When I read that Paris was besieged, I said, "Now the pictures and statues in the Louvre and Luxembourg will be destroyed; all those faces of Rembrandt, and those bold dashes of Rubens, and those enchantments of Raphael on canvas, and those statues of Canova." But is it not a more melancholy thought that ruin is to come upon this great glory of the earth, in which the mountains are the chiseled sculptures, and upon the sky, in which the "transfiguration" of sunrise and sunset is hung with loops and tassels of fire?

I was relieved when I found that the pictures had been removed from the Louvre and the Luxembourg, and I am relieved now when I think that the best parts of this earth are either to be removed or pictured in the good land. The trees must twist in the last fire—the oaks, and the cedars and the maples; but in heaven there shall be the trees of life on the bank of the river, and the palm trees from which the conqueror shall pluck their branches. The Hudson, and the St. Lawrence, and the Ohio shall boil in the last flame, but we shall have more than their beauty in the river of life from under the throne. The dahlias, and the portulacas, and the roses of earth will wither in the hot stroke of the judgment, but John tells of the garlands which the glorified shall wear; and [illegible] garlands.

The rainbow on our sky, which is only the pillow of the dying storm, must be removed; but then, glory be to God! "there is a rainbow round about the throne." I have but to look up to the radiant arch above the throne of God to assure myself that the most glorious things of earth are to be preserved in heaven. Then let the world burn; all that is worth saving will be snatched out of the fire.

STORIES OF THE NEW JERUSALEM.

I see the same truth set forth in the twelve foundations of the wall of heaven. St. John announces the twelve foundations of this wall to be, the first, of jasper—yellow and red; the second, of sapphire—a deep blue; the third, a chalcedony—a variegated beauty; the fourth, emerald—a bright green color; the fifth, sardonyx—a bluish white; the sixth, sardius—red and fiery; the seventh, chrysolite—golden hued; the eighth, beryl—a bluish green; the ninth, topaz—a pale green mixed with yellow; the tenth, chrysoprasus—a golden bluish tint; the eleventh, jacinth—fiery as the sunset; the twelfth, amethyst. But these precious stones are only the foundation of the wall of heaven—the most inferior part of it. On the top of this foundation there rises a mighty wall of jasper—of brilliant yellow and gorgeous crimson. Stupendous cataract of color! Throne of splendor and sublimity!

You see that the beautiful colors which are the robes of glory to our earth are to be forever preserved in this wall of heaven. Our skies of blue, which sometimes seem almost to drop with richness of color, shall be glorified and eternized in the deep, everlasting blue of that fiery stone which forms the second foundation of the heavenly wall. The green that sleeps on the brook's bank, and rides on the sea wave, and spreads its banners on the mountain top, shall be eternized in the emerald that forms the fourth foundation of the heavenly wall. The fiery gush of the morning, the conflagration of the autumnal sunset, the electricity that shoots its forked tongue out of the thunder cloud, the flame at whose breath Moscow fell and Ætna burn, shall be eternized in the fiery jasper. It seems as if all earthly beauty were in one billow to be dashed up against that wall of heaven; so that the most beautiful things of earth will be kept either in the wall, or the foundation, or in the rainbow round about the throne.

I notice the unspeakable attractiveness of heaven. In other places the Bible tells us of the floor of heaven—the waters and the stones and the fruits; but now St. John tells us of the roof—the frescoed arch of eternity and the rainbow round about the throne. Get a ticket and, carefully guarded, you go into the royal factory at Paris where the Gobelin tapestries of the world are made, and see how for years a man will sit putting in and out a ball of colored worsteds through the delicate threads, satisfied if he can in a day make so much as a finger's breadth of beauty for a king's canopy. But behold how my Lord, in one hour, with his two hands, twisted the tapestry, now swung above the throne, into a rainbow of infinite glory. Oh, what a place heaven must be! You have heretofore looked at the floor; this morning take one glance at the ceiling.

I notice what must be the feeling of safety among the people of heaven. Have you ever seen a cloud burst? There have been days when it rained as if it would never stop. You knew if it kept on in that way long all the nations would be drowned; yet you had no apprehension, for you remember the Bow of Promise painted on the cloud in Noah's time. So the glorified have but to look to the arch around the throne of the King to be reassured that the deluge of trial is forever past.

THE FLOOD OF SIN.

On earth the deluge of sin covers the tops of the highest mountains. I heard an Alpine guide, amid the most stupendous evidences of God's power, swear at his mule as he stumbled in the pass. Yes, the deluge of sin dashes over the top of the highest mountain ranges. Revenge, drunkenness, impiety, falsehood, blasphemy are but different waves of a flood that has whelmed nations. New York is drowned in it, Brooklyn is drowned in it, Boston is drowned in it, London is drowned in it, St. Petersburg is drowned in it—two great hemispheres are drowned in it. But the redeemed, looking unto the "rainbow round about the throne," see the pledge that all this is ended for them forever. They have committed their last sin and combated their last temptation. No suicide leaps into those bright waters; no profanity befouls that pure air; no villain's torch shall fire those temples; no murderer's hand shall strike down those sons of God. They know that for them the deluge of sin is assuaged, for "there is a rainbow round about the throne."

Now the world is covered with a deluge of blood. The nations are all the time either using the sword or sharpening it. The factories of the world are night and day manufacturing the weaponry of death. Thrones against thrones, empire against empire. The spirit of despotism and freedom at war in every land: despotic America against free America, despotic England against free England, despotic Germany against free Germany, despotic Austria against free Austria. The great battle of earth is being fought—the Armageddon of the nations. The song that unrolled from the sky on the first Christmas night, of "peace and good will to men," is drowned in the booming of the great siege guns. Stand back and let the long line of ambulances pass. Groan to groan. Uncover, and look upon the trenches of the dead. Blood! blood!—a deluge of blood!

But the redeemed of heaven, looking upon the glorious arch that spans the throne, shall see that the deluge is over. No batteries are planted on those hills; no barricades blocking those streets; no hostile flag above those walls; no smoke of burning villages; no shrieks of butchered men; but peace! German and Frenchman, who fell with arms interlocked in hate on the field of death, now, through Christ in heaven, stand with arms interlocked in love. Arms stacked forever; shields of battle hung up. The dove instead of the eagle; the lamb instead of the lion. There shall be nothing to hurt or destroy in all God's holy mount, for there is a rainbow round about the throne.

FLOODS OF SORROW AND SUFFERING.

Now the earth is covered with the deluge of sorrow. Trouble! trouble! The very first utterance when we come into the world is a cry. Without any teaching, we learn to weep. What has so wrinkled that man's face? What has so prematurely whitened his hair? What calls out that sigh? What starts that tear? Trouble! trouble! I find it in the cellar of poverty, and far up among the heights on the top of the crags; for this also hath gone over the tops of the highest mountains. No escape from it. You go into the store, and it meets you at your counting desk; you go into the street, and it meets you at the corner; you go into the house, and it meets you at the door. Tears of poverty! tears of persecution! tears of bereavement—a deluge of tears! Gathered together from all the earth, they could float an ark larger than Noah's.

But the glorified, looking up to the bow that spans the throne, shall see that the deluge is over. No shivering wretch on the palace step; no blind man at the gate of the heavenly temple, asking for alms; no grinding of the screw driver on coffin lid. They look up at the rainbow, and read, in lines of yellow, and red, and green, and blue, and orange, and indigo, and violet, "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat; for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Thank God for the glory spanning the throne!

In our boyhood we had a superstition that at the foot of the rainbow there was a casket of buried gold; but I have to announce that at the foot of this rainbow of heaven there is a box made out of the wood of the cross. Open it, and you find all the treasures of heaven.

Oh that our eyes may all look upon this bow of promise, lifted by Christ's own hand! We shall trace the separate lines of beauty across the firmament. In the line of red I shall see the blood of my Lord; in the blue, the bruises that colored his cheek; in the green, the freshness of his grace; in the violet, his humility; in all that curve of beauty, the bend of his right arm of love swung over all the redeemed.

But mind what I told you at the beginning, and what I tell you at the close—that none but Noah's family in the ark saw the rainbow, and that only those who are at last in Christ shall discover it amid the glories of heaven.

"Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

CATCHING A BIG TROUT.

He Weighed Three and a Half Pounds and Made Things Lively.

An invitation had been received from a party on the upper pond to visit their camp, and we thought this a good opportunity to try the fishing there, so one morning found us paddling in that direction. As we passed our old fishing-ground we concluded to stop for half an hour and try our luck. Each of us had a rod and a hand line, and all the hooks were covered with worm bait. Before long I felt a bite—not a rush and a grab as a half-pounder is likely to make, but a deliberate trial of the bait. I waited for the next bite, which was sure to come. It came, and then I felt him indeed. He would not budge an inch, and, as I was using a very light leader, to drag him up to the surface by the usual hand line method was impossible. I pulled as much as I dared, and at last he stopped shaking his head and started, as it seemed to me, at about sixty miles an hour, and away from the boat. The line was wound on a stick, and I remember now how that stick danced around in the boat as the line ran through my fingers. I snubbed him all I dared, and at last turned him. Now he came directly for the boat, and it seemed as though I couldn't get the line in fast enough. Then under the boat like a shot, and again I had to pay out line. After awhile he began to tire. I asked for the landing net, and from the blank looks of the boys I knew it had been left at home. Resolved not to lose the fish, I played him very carefully, till at length he turned on his side from sheer exhaustion, and then, inserting my fingers in his gills, I lifted him quickly into the boat. He weighed three pounds and a half, the largest trout it has ever been my fortune to catch yet.—Outing.

A Bower of Flowers.

The house in New York in which one of the fashionable weddings took place recently was a bower of flowers. Pots of chrysanthemums were ranged about the reception hall on the four sides. Upon the bannisters were tied at close intervals bunches of chrysanthemums fastened with ribbons. The doorways of the parlors were arched with ferns and white chrysanthemums, garlands of the same were festooned about the walls, white roses, white geraniums and chrysanthemums filled the fireplaces and canopied the mantels. A gigantic horseshoe of ferns and white flowers marked out the floor space where the bride and groom took their positions, and a floral bell of the same blossoms hung above their heads. White rose garlands of the Louis XIV period lay on every table, and were presented to the guests in attendance. The bride carried white orchids and the bride's maids white roses.—New York Mail and Express.

Moses Had Asthma.

My husband had asthma for eight years with severe cough, and his lungs also were affected. He could neither rest, work nor get relief from any medicine he tried. Some time ago we got Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and after taking six or eight bottles his cough is entirely cured, the asthma greatly relieved, and his lungs greatly benefitted. MRS. THE ELECTION.

The result of the election yesterday, if not up to expectations, was in no sense discouraging. The Opposition, with the solitary exception of Yale, shows increased strength. If the Government are not returned by the skin of their teeth, the margin of their majorities is so small that they cannot but feel that their success is owing more to Opposition apathy than to their own intrinsic merits. It has just been remarked that the result of the elections was not up to expectations. Mr. TURNER should have been beaten, and so should Mr. ROBSON. Neither of the gentlemen were entitled to win on the strength of their respective records. The labor element in Victoria and their corelates should have beaten Mr. TURNER. Mr. TURNER's record is not such as any reflective working man could endorse. The mere fact alone that Mr. TURNER voted for the $200 deposit for candidates should have killed him dead as a door nail with every elector who depends on a salary for a living. This little measure, originating in the Attorney-General and supported by the Government, and having for its grand object the killing off of prospective labor candidates, not only should have defeated Mr. TURNER but the entire Government ticket throughout the Province. It is some consolation, however, to know that he came out at the foot of the polls. That he was elected by a bare majority will be a lesson to him. He will have learned, perhaps, that the prestige of personal popularity will not always tide a man over a record which is a series of gross mistakes. But what should be said of that delectable constituency, the Westminster district, which having been betrayed by the Hon. JOHN ROBSON, nevertheless returned him to betray it again whenever he shall regard it to his interest to do so. Mr. ROBSON's confirmation by his old constituency simply confirms the oft repeated statement that men exercise the ballot only to abuse it. In Yale we have a condition of affairs no less inconsistent than that evinced by the Westminsterites. Mr. SEMLIN did not poll as large a vote at Kamloops as he ought. Mr. SEMLIN has been a faithful servant of Yale. He has always been on the right side of all public questions coming up for legislative action, and of all the Yale members he is by far the ablest. With respect to Kamloops' pet grievance, the twenty-lots-twenty-votes arrangement, he opposed it, but was voted down by the Government. Kamloops, however, polled the heaviest vote for the men who supported this pernicious municipal principle. Kamloops has not only shown itself to be ungrateful, but it is evident that Kamloops, like Westminster, only uses the ballot to abuse it. Passing on to Kootenay, while it is not unlikely that Col. BAKER is defeated, the returns show that he was strongly supported. Col. Baker should have been "snowed under" so deeply in Kootenay as to have forever squelched his political aspirations. Of all the men who should have been able to detect the blunder of the Mineral Act, he was the one, and yet, like the automaton he is, he held up his thumb for the Government. But we need not further review the result of the election. The character of the House is changed. The Government have learned that their policy has not met the approval of the people, as they loudly expected it would, and this fact is all the more emphasized for the reason that in point of organization the Opposition had neither head nor tail. It is unquestionable that in this campaign the Opposition lost a great opportunity. It may be a long time before the Opposition, as represented in its present personnel, will have the opportunity to sweep men from power who have held it only to prostitute it to private ends. The Government within the next four years will seize the opportunity to correct their errors, and, made aware from the infusion of new blood in the House that they must steer the Ship of State with due regard to public interests in their broadest and most statesman-like light, they will scarcely run up against the shoals of class legislation as has been their habit in the past. Of course there is no telling what contingencies may arise, and judging of Robsonian capacity for blundering in the past, no living man can afford to hazard a conjecture as to what he may succeed in accomplishing in this direction in the future.

IN VICTORIA.

The success of the Opposition in Victoria admits of no qualifying features out of which the most ardent supporter of the Government can extract the slightest comfort. No one candidate in the history of the Province ever before polled so large a vote as Mayor GRANT, while as for the suffrages Dr. MILNE rolled up, we have in them a remarkable illustration of the wise forethought the Government can occasionally exercise when they shifted the Attorney-General from Victoria to Cowichan. The Government, in this respect, seemed to see the handwriting on the wall. To save the Attorney-General they had to transfer him to a borough especially subsidized for the purpose, a moral triumph for the Opposition in itself, and which Cowichan would have accentuated into a concrete victory, by refusing to support him had it a tithe of the moral stamina which an intelligent electorate is supposed to possess. Mr. BEAVEN polled a splendid vote. The increase is a most gratifying contrast to the falling off of popular confidence evinced in the case of Mr. TURNER. It is perfectly clear now, that, had there not been a defection among the labor and single tax vote, owing probably to a misunderstanding, Mr. TURNER would have been defeated. It is impossible to say to what extent Mr. WILSON drew from the Opposition or from the Government, but circumstances seem to indicate that only for Mr. WILSON, the Opposition would have made a clean sweep.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A company with a capital of $500,000 is said to have been formed in New York State for the purpose of constructing a milk pipe line from a dairy region in the State to the metropolis. The idea, if the story be true, is evidently borrowed from that of the great oil pipe lines which run from the oil regions in Pennsylvania to the great refining centres. It is not proposed, however, to forward the milk through the pipes in a stream, but through cylindrical tin cans, surrounded and propelled by water, due care being taken, it is to be hoped, to prevent the mixture of the two liquids. We may next hear of a city milk service, like that by which water is distributed.

The farmers of the Australian colony of Victoria have declared war against protection. Groaning under the heavy import duties on the various class of implements used by them, they demanded of the legislature at its last session an increase of the duties on their products, thinking that they had as much right to protection as other interests. They asked for a uniform tariff of three shillings per cental on all grain and pulse and an increase on all live stock and dead meat imported into the colony. The Assembly, however, refused to accede to their demands, and now they have declared in favor of a return to free trade. The Victorian Farmers' Protection Association being at the head of the new movement.

TO DIVE FOR DOUBLOONS.

Wreckers to Work in the Sea for Sunken Shekels.

NEW-YORK, June 12.—The wrecking steamer Rescue, of the Merrit Wrecking Company, under the command of Capt. Demorest, has sailed for Cape Henlopen to begin operations for the recovery of the British ship of war De Braak, which was capsized off Delaware in 1798. It is believed that $10,000,000 in Spanish gold is in the hold of the sunken vessel. In 1880 a contract was made by the United States Government with the International Submarine Company, of New Haven, Conn., giving it the exclusive right to search for the treasure. Under this contract the Ocean Wrecking Company of Philadelphia, which has secured the services of the Merrit Wrecking Company, will carry on the work. In a fortnight several other wrecking vessels will join the Rescue.

On May 23, 1798, the De Braak arrived at Cape Henlopen in company with a captured Spanish vessel called the Snow, whose valuable treasures were secured in Captain Drew's cabin. The object of the De Braak's commander was to obtain water and provisions for his crew, who numbered 213. While casting anchor about a mile from the lighthouse a sudden squall came up and laid her on her beam end, when she immediately filled and went down with the captain and 66 officers, seamen and marines. The rest of the ship's company, including the boatswain, escaped.

At Brandon to-day the Brandons defeated Portage la Prairie for the lacrosse championship four games to nothing. The Winnipegs play the western clubs next week.

CANOE RACE AT WHATCOM.

We have received the following note from Whatcom, under date of June 9: Among the sports provided for our celebration of the coming 4th of July is a canoe race, which to be a success will necessitate the presence here on that day of a goodly number of Indians skilled in canoe racing. The committee has set apart a liberal sum for that race, and our object in addressing you is to request that you give the matter such publicity as will insure the attendance of a number of Indians from your vicinity for which we will be under great obligation. C. DONOVAN, for the committee.

BASEBALL.

There was a large attendance at the Caledonian Park this afternoon to witness the game of baseball between James Bay and Wellington teams. The rain in the morning made the boys feel a little anxious, but the ground was perfectly dry before the game started.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT.

The General Activity in Trade Throughout the Country.

NEW-YORK, June 14.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show that on the whole the distribution is of very large proportions notwithstanding the reports of only moderate activity in the leading lines for weeks past. From Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Kansas City and other cities the special activity noted at present is in dry goods, cottons and boots and shoes, except at Kansas City, where agricultural implements and groceries are the most active. There has been a good demand at San Francisco, but Chicago, St. Louis and Duluth report a good demand for seasonable staples. The great activity in general trade throughout the country more than counterbalances the railway rate troubles in some sections, and as a result the gross railway earnings for May increased 14.47 per cent. over May of last year, which month showed a gain of 6 per cent. over May 1888. The total earnings for May of 137 companies aggregated $35,493,026, an increase over last May of $4,488,897. The southwestern group as before ranks first with a gain of 22 per cent. For the first 5 months the earnings of 124 roads aggregate $169,953,[illegible], on a mileage of 78,124 miles, a gain of respectively 12, 7 and 9 per cent.

In these items bank clearings at 57 cities for six days ending June 12, are 1,263,103,274, a gain over the like week last year of 11 per cent. New York city clearings, which constitute 63 per cent. of the grand total, exceed those for a like period of last year by nearly nine per cent. Stock speculation at New York is very dull, with a tendency in prices to sag lower.

Europe has sold stocks, and the professional element is slightly bearish on the slow process of silver legislation and the unsettled railroad troubles. Provisions and cereals have nearly all declined within the week, the drop in wheat being about 20, mainly on the improved crop outlook and weaker cables. Hog products too are weak, lard being off 10 points; live hogs and cattle are weaker at western markets, and dairy products, while firm, are selling at lower figures than a week ago. Heavier sales of pig iron are reported east, west and South. A better feeling pervades in the south because of the rather unexpected influx of orders and the lowest quotations have been withdrawn while a nominal advance of 50 cents per ton has been made on a few well known branches and coal is firmer and tends upward, while copper is higher with an active demand. Exports of wheat (and flour as wheat) both coasts equal 1,302,060 bu. this week against 1,378,547 bu. in a like week last year and 2,324,610 bushels last week. The total exported for July was 11,889 to date, as specially telegraphed from the seaboard by Bradstreets. Each week is 101,864,624 bushels against 83,169,990 bushels is a like period of 1888-89. Available stocks of wheat at 10 points of accumulation east of the Rocky mountains as reported to Bradstreets declined only 800,000 bushels last week against an average weekly prior to May of nearly fifty per cent larger. Business failures reported to Bradstreets number 149 in the United States this week against 175 last week and 175 this week last year. Canada had 18 this week against 27 last week. The total number of failures in the United States Jan. 1st to date 5,091 against 5,430 in a like period of 1889.

The steamer Greetlands has arrived at Montreal with fifty immigrants from St. Johns and Little Glass Bay, Newfoundland. Nearly all these are bound for the Northwest. One man remarked shortly after landing, that if the best half of the Island continues locked much longer, 50 per cent. of the people of Newfoundland will have to emigrate in order to save themselves from starvation.

LIVERPOOL, B.C.

The Fraser River Terminus of the New Westminster Southern Railway,

Opposite the rapidly growing City of New Westminster, and having deep water frontage on Fraser River.

The New Westminster Southern Railway runs from Liverpool to Fairhaven, Wash., where it connects with the great Northern Pacific Railway system. The Railway Company has now under construction at Liverpool a wharf 700 feet in length, costing about $10,000, and they intend to immediately erect workshops, passenger and freight stations, etc. The road is already graded between Liverpool and Fairhaven, and it is expected that trains will be in operation between the two places by 30th August, 1890.

A portion of the town site will be on the market on and after 16th June instant, and lots will be sold at low prices for a short time, and purchasers will have the benefit of first prices.

USED UNNECESSARY FORCE.

The Douglas Street Assault Case Ventilated in the Police Court.

In the police court this morning Edwin Aspdin was charged with assaulting Mrs. Elizabeth Neil. Mr. F. G. Walker appeared for the defence and pleaded not guilty.

The prosecutrix, Mrs. Neil, gave evidence that last Tuesday she heard that defendant was whipping her son. She went to defendant's store, corner of Pembroke and Douglas streets, and was there met by him. Defendant said to her that if she did not look out for her boy, he, defendant, would. Defendant then opened the store and ordered Mrs. Neil out, and enforced his order by striking her three times in the back with his fist; the last blow, Mrs. Neil stated, knocked her down on the sidewalk, and the effects of the fall had been serious to her, as she had sustained bruises from it.

Wm. Alexander gave corroborative evidence, and further deposed that defendant Aspdin had asked him, Alexander, if he would come to court and swear that defendant did not strike Mrs Neil.

Evidence was also given by two little girls, Misses Baker and Milne, substantially the same as the others.

Edwin Aspdin on oath stated that a boy of Mrs. Neil's had been teasing his horse and had been ordered off. Shortly after, Mrs. Neil came to defendant's store and demanded what had been done to her boy. Was rather loud in her talk, and defendant told her to "get out." The prosecutrix had tried to scratch him, and was then taken by the arm by defendant and pushed out of the door. Did not use any violence at all.

His Honor drew the attention of the defendant to the fact that the prosecutrix was a little woman who would not weigh a hundred pounds, and was also nursing a very young baby. This the defendant admitted.

Elizabeth Sea was called for the defence, and stated that she saw defendant push Mrs. Neil out of the store, but did not strike her. In answer to the Supt. of Police, witness said she did not see Mrs. Neil fall on the walk.

Defendant's wife and brother also gave similar evidence.

His Honor thought that an assault had first been committed by defendant on the prosecutrix's boy, and the little woman had then gone to defendant's shop to find out why her boy had been punished. One word brought on another, and Mrs. Neil was ordered out. She ought to have gone when told. It then remained to see what the defendant did, if he had exceeded the law or not. There seemed to be no need to push her out. The woman was small, and the man could have said to his wife or the girl to put her out, or he could have gone away and left the woman there; she would have done no harm; the defendant had first violated the law by assaulting Mrs. Neil's boy, and the mother was only obeying her natural instincts to protect the child. Evidence was pretty clear that unnecessary force had been used to put Mrs. Neil out, and imposed a fine of $10 and costs, $4.25, which was paid.

PERSONAL.

Movements of Well Known People in Various Directions.

Miss L. Denny and Miss M. Durham went across the Sound this morning on a visit.

Miss L. Bailey, of Port Townsend, who has been spending a few weeks with friends in Victoria, returned home by the North Pacific this morning.

W. R. McKenzie, traveling auditor of the Union Pacific, and Mrs. McKenzie, arrived over from Vancouver last night. The latter will spend a few days in the city.

W. S. Stephens, the well-known steamboat designer and builder, has gone over to Seattle for a short visit, and a rest after finishing up his masterpiece, the steamer Mystery.

BRIEF LOCALS.

The Day's Doings in City and Province Briefly Related.

The elections yesterday were in the main very quiet, few disturbances occurring.

The coming fortnight will see three weddings performed in the Reformed Episcopal church, two of which will be in the same family.

A longshoreman named Jas. Dunné, is lying in the city lockup, charged with stealing $40 from an old man named Johnson. He will be dealt with on Monday.

Election whiskey was not very plentiful yesterday, if the drunks in the police court this morning is any proof, for only two graced the dock. The usual fines were imposed.

The boilers and machinery for Duncan, Batchelor & Co.'s new cannery, Lulu Island, which were made at the Albion Iron Works, will be shipped to their destination to-morrow.

A Winnipeg reporter gives this information: "This is summer-like weather," and the date of the paper is in the leafy month of June. What sort of a country can it be where a summer-like day in June is a novelty.

The locomotive for the E. & N. R.R., which fell into the sea at Frisco some weeks ago while being loaded on board the steamer Wellington, has been raised, repaired and safely loaded again, and is now on its way north.

There are over a hundred cases of barber's itch in Winnipeg. Travelers arriving in Victoria for the past week or two from that city, have all beards of a month's growth. All the tonsorial artists are on the verge of bankruptcy.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. will give one of their delightful socials at the Y.M.C.A. rooms next Wednesday evening. The leading features this time will be excellent music by well known talent, and ice-cream of guaranteed merit.

The twelfth of July will be celebrated by the Orangemen at Queen's Park, New Westminster, this year. They have obtained exclusive use of it for that day, and the sale of intoxicating liquors on the ground will very properly be prohibited.

News from Cariboo.

Crops in the vicinity of Quesnelle are all in, but rather backward.

Advices from Barkerville state that everything is brisk. The Island Mountain will soon start to work under the supervision of J. F. Hawks.

The bricks are being made for the Government works by Duclos & Co. Already there are not enough men to supply the demand.

The Water Let In.

This afternoon the flooding gates of the drydock at Esquimalt were opened, and the water admitted outside the vessel. She stood the test all right, the work done by the Albion Iron Works employees being first-class. The water will be drawn off to-morrow, and the hull painted finally for hauling out of dock next week.

Anti-Chinese Dog.

This afternoon a little innocent-looking dog that was wandering around the streets, was the cause of quite a little curiosity. He would walk up to every Chinaman that came along and try to take a piece out of his pants, in some cases being successful in taking pants flesh and all. The dog would pass by a white man, but he didn't have any use for the Mongolians, he having evidently been brought up in an anti-Chinese family.

All work guaranteed a perfect fit or no sale. J. McCallum, "The famous Californian Tailor," 48 Fort street, Victoria, B. C. Prompt and careful attention to letter orders. Samples mailed. my29-1m

Being Prepared.

Some enquiry has been made since the new fire alarm system has been put in as to where the keys could be procured in case they were required, and suggestions have been made that notices be affixed to each box stating were the key could be found. Chief Deasy has anticipated this, and some time ago left orders with a local sign painter to prepare tin notices for each box, and in a few days they will be put in position. Meanwhile, should a key be required it can be obtained at the nearest house to the box.

A Slayer of Panthers.

While the ubiquitous reporter of the TIMES was on his rounds yesterday, he saw a large panther at the E. & N.R.R. station. The reporter was informed that the big cat had been shot by Mr. James Phair, and so wrote the item. Mr. Phair has since informed the TIMES that he did not shoot the beast, but that the killing was done by Mr. A. Gilmore of Goldstream, who although getting along in years, is still able to draw a deadly bead with his trusty rifle on such "varmint" as panthers, and it was a bullet from Mr. Gilmore's weapon which stopped the depredations of the animal which had of late been feeding on the young lambs near Goldstream. It is understood that this is not the first panther killed by Mr. Gilmore.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottles by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. eodawly

THE RED BEGGAR.

Once upon a time there was a pretty little cottage by the side of the road to the town. It was humble, but all about it, everything, was always neat and trig, so it was evident that it was not the dwelling of either sloth or want. A honeysuckle climbed up over the door, and gay flowers bloomed in beds before it; while on the south was the stand for the bees, where in straw thatched hives they stored honey all day long in sunny weather.

In the cottage lived an old man named Paul and his wife Barbarer. They were very fond of each other, and had it not been that they had no children they would have been as happy as the day was long. As it was, they tried not to miss too much the prattle of little ones which the storks would not bring to them, but went on their way in life, thrifty and kind to the poor, and doing good when it offered.

In the morning Paul would go afield to his work, while Dame Barbarer would remain at home to do whatever household tasks needed attention and afterward to spin smooth threads of flax with her distaff, to be sold in the market of the town or to be woven into cloth from which she made clothing for herself and her husband, or, what quite as often happened, for some poor and unfortunate neighbor.

Dame Barbarer was always kind to the beggars who came her way. They seemed to her so unfortunate in not having a home that she could not help giving them at least food and now and then an article of clothing, and she was almost always patient even when their requests, as sometimes happened, took almost the form of commands.

"The poor creatures know no better," she would say. "They have nothing; not even sense enough to know how to be grateful; but that does not matter. I do not help them because they beg prettily, but because they need."

But once upon a time there came a beggar who tried the patience of Dame Barbarer quite beyond even her endurance. It was one afternoon when it was almost time for her husband to return from the field, and Barbarer was hastening to get his evening meal ready for him. She had been to the town to sell some thread, and had been detained, so that she had not time on her return to bake a wheaten cake for his supper, as she had intended. She had only a very little bread in the house, and when a beggar came along and rather impudently demanded a bit of bread and cheese she was loth to give it to him.

The beggar was by no means a prepossessing looking individual. His dress was all of red, although it was so faded and weather beaten, so tattered and torn that it was hard to tell what it looked like in its best days. The remains of a red cock's feather was stuck jauntily in his cap and jagged ends of faded red ribbon fastened his doublet. Long black hair dangled in tangled locks over his forehead, and, with his shaggy black eyebrows, half hid his piercing eyes. His nose was sharp and thin, and there was to his nostrils a strange curve which made his face one not at all prepossessing. Add to all this that he was lame of one foot and that he had something of a hump between his shoulders, and he was not at all the sort of man one would wish to meet on a lonely road.

Dame Barbarer heaved a sigh as she looked at him, and hesitated, while the strange red figure leered at her in a manner that sent a cold chill down her spine. She did not wish to share the little bread there was for Paul's supper with this fantastic looking creature, but she was too charitable to turn him away without a morsel. So she made the beggar sit down upon the doorstep, and then she brought him a small piece of bread and a big piece of cheese, hoping that the size of the one would make up for the smallness of the other.

The red beggar fell to eating with the appetite of a board of locusts and as if he had eaten nothing for a month, and it was hardly the twinkling of an eye before he had finished the bit of bread completely.

"Please, mistress," he said beseechingly, "please, mistress, could you not give me just a little wee bit of bread to eat with the rest of my cheese?"

The dame, although this was exactly what she did not wish to do, cut him a slice of bread and gave it to him with the best grace she could manage.

The ragged rascal fell to eating even faster than before, and almost before she had laid down the bread knife he had made an end to his cheese.

"Please, kind mistress," he said more humbly than before, "please, kind mistress, couldn't you give me a morsel of cheese to go with my bread?"

This also was Dame Barbarer fain to do; and hungrily as the fire devouring a field of ripe grain did the varlet make way with his bread.

"Please, good, kind mistress," he said, "please, good, kind mistress, could you not give me a very little, wee morsel of bread to eat with my cheese?"

And to cut short a story which though it would be long in the telling was not long in the doing, the red beggar would contrive first to make an end to his bread and then to make an end to his cheese, begging with ever increasing insistance for more of one and then of the other, until he had managed to beg from Dame Barbarer every morsel of bread there was in the house, and the hour of the good man's return already striking. And when all was gone the impudent and ungrateful rascal raised back his hair from his deep set and piercing eyes and laughed in her face.

"Many thanks, sweet mistress," he said saucily. "If the good man scold for lack of his supper, teach him the way I get mine, and it may serve him in good stead if he will but take to the highway and seek out some soul as charitable as his wife."

Then it was that for almost the only time in her life Dame Barbarer lost her temper.

"Get you gone!" she cried angrily. "Is it not enough that you have eaten all the good man's supper when he toiled all day and you have been asleep, it is likely, in the sun beside some haystack, but in return you must stay, and flout me for my silly good nature. A pretty return, good sooth, for the food I have given you! Get you gone while I can still keep my honest hands off your lazy carcass."

The vagabond scrambled up from his seat upon the doorstep, and stood looking into her angry face with an unpleasant laugh.

"May I not come in and warm myself by the fire first?" he asked saucily.

"Come in and warm yourself!" echoed the dame angrily. "Let your supper warm you, beggar!"

And with that she pushed him off of the step into the sandy walk.

"May you be colder the more you put on," said the red beggar as Dame Barbarer closed her cottage door upon him with a push not very gentle.

The dame did not heed him or his words, but set to work with all speed to get something ready for her husband's supper.

"Shivery shakery!" said Dame Barbarer to Goodman Paul when he came, "I am very cold."

"Put more clothes on," he answered.

So he gave her his coat, and she put that on and her thickest cloak, and her hood and a pair of mittens, and two pairs of stockings.

"Shivery shakery! Shakery shivery!" cried the old woman; "I am colder than ever."

"Put more clothes on," said Paul.

So she put on a veil and her husband's boots and his Sunday cravat and a pair of earrings and a walking stick.

"Shivery shakery! Shakery shivery! I shiver and shake!" she cried. "I am colder than before."

"Put more clothes on," said her husband.

So she put on a blanket and a bosom pin, and a necklace that she had not worn since she was a young girl, and a collar and her husband's watch chain.

"Shivery shakery! Shakery shivery! I shiver and shake! I shake and shiver!" she cried. "I am colder than ever."

"Put more clothes on," once more said her husband. "Here, take my thick waistcoat."

She took the waistcoat, but in order to get it on it was necessary to take off some of the many things she was already wearing; and, as fast as she took off the things in which she was wrapped, she began at once to get warmer, and she remembered the words of the red beggar, and how he had wished that she might grow colder the more she put on; and Dame Barbarer knew that a spell had been laid upon her because she had spoken harshly to the vagabond when he wished to come in and warm himself by her fire. She therefore made herself warm by taking off her wrappings until she had as little on as it was at all respectable to wear, and thereafter she went in cold weather so thinly clad that her neighbors declared that she had lost her wits.

It was well nigh a year that this state of things continued, and one day just as the sun was near setting, and the dame was every moment expecting her husband home from the field where he had been at work all day, when a strange old woman came puttering along the road. The poor old creature was bent well nigh double, and one could see that her back was not straight, a hump standing out where her shoulders were stooped over. The old woman, indeed, was so bent over that it was not possible to see her face, and it was only by her dress that one could have known her again.

But it was this dress which made Dame Barbarer stare; for it was all of faded red, tattered and stained and weather beaten, and patched here and there, but despite the fact that it was the dress of a woman and not of a man, there was something about it that brought the red beggar of the year before up so vividly to the dame that she began, all of a tremble, to put a supper on a plate for the newcomer without even waiting to be asked. The old red woman sat down on the doorstep, panting and chuckling.

"You are dressed strangely, Dame," she said, "for the time of year."

"The time of year has nothing to do with what I wear," answered poor Dame Barbarer; "the colder it gets the less I wear, and in summer I have to put on the thickest things I have to keep cool."

The old red woman chuckled.

"Perhaps my brother has been here," she observed, eating away with a hearty appetite.

"Is he your brother?" asked Barbarer piteously; "oh, if you would only ask him to undo the charm and make me like other people, there isn't anything I wouldn't do for you."

"Humph! Perhaps you weren't polite to him. He is very particular about that."

"I am sure," the Dame answered, "I tried to be kind to him until he was saucy to me."

The red woman chuckled more than ever.

"Well," she said, finishing her supper, and rising with more agility than one would have expected of her; "you are on the whole a good sort, and I dare say on the whole you have been punished enough."

"Oh, indeed I have," poor Barbarer answered, with tears in her eyes. "More than enough."

"Well, then," the old woman said, "it shall not be said that I have not made amends for what my brother did more than you deserved, and you shall have your heart's desire."

She looked into Barbarer's face, and the dame would have sworn for her life that it was the red beggar who cursed her into whose face she was gazing. Then she leant over again with one of her strangest chuckles, and went hobbling down the road.

And before the summer came around again the storks had brought a little son to the cottage.—Quincy Townsend in Boston Courier.

GLADSTONE'S SUCCESSOR.

Earl Spencer, the Broad-Minded Aristocrat—His Career.

It is believed in England that Earl Spencer will be the successor of Mr. Gladstone. He is one of those noblemen who interpret favorably to the whole scheme of hereditary aristocracy, and he has a generosity of spirit and a breadth of intellectual vision that incite enthusiasm. He was born in 1835, and succeeded to his title soon after coming of age. In 1859 he became attached to the household of the Prince Consort in a confidential and advisory capacity, and in 1868 was made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. This position he filled for a few years, but it was then comparitively uneventful. In 1882, however, he was reappointed, and this dramatic period is not only vividly remembered by all interested in contemporary life, but will form one of the most impressive periods in English history. Lord Spencer as viceroy had as his chief secretary Frederick Cavendish, whose tragic end, by "murder most foul," is held in vivid remembrance. This brutal act had its influence in the subsequent rule of Lord Spencer, which is held to be a despotic one. England laid the iron grasp of law heavily on Ireland. For a period of two years following this murder there was literally a reign of terror, which requires no allusion in detail. Irish wrath was concentrated upon Lord Spencer as the embodiment of English law. He was known as "the red earl," doors were closed against him, and black flags hung out when he approached. Lord Spencer's second term in Ireland was enough to have appalled and deeply prejudiced a man less wise and benignant, but out of those very conditions he formed and adhered to his theory of Home Rule. He is a man of remarkable penetration and even more remarkable justice in his convictions. The personal enmity and senseless indignity shown him did not blind his eyes to the genuine qualities of the Irish nation, as seen in the better class of its citizens. Lord Spencer thus ranged himself with Mr. Gladstone on the Irish questions and that registered the unmistakable noble quality of his character. He is an accomplished scholar, a man of wide reading and choice culture, and has in a marked degree that directive ability, which, joined to his magnanimity and judicial vision, renders him one of the most able and astute of English statesmen.—Boston Budget.

ONTARIO ELECTION TALK.

Government Majority not so Large as at First Thought.

TORONTO, June 8.—Latest rumors indicate that Mowat has not quite such a majority as at first stated. The loss of the two Algomas, which seems pretty certain, and which the Globe admits in the list this morning, was not expected. Those districts evidently expected the Government to be beaten, and wanted to be on the winning side. Prince Edward too, goes Tory by one, but a recount may possibly alter this. Meantime the government's majority is still ample, and will be either 17 or 19—a figure much more timely to consolidate the government supporters than would ten above it. Special inquiry made at Ottawa elicits the statement that Sir John did not vote at all. There is nothing new as to the probable mode Mowat will select of filling the Cabinet vacancies that are bound to occur shortly. Drury is expected to be offered the shrievalty of Simcoe. Two or three Conservatives have since the election attacked Rev. Principal Caven as the cause of Meredith's defeat. The Mail comes to his rescue this morning with an article in which it says the Opposition defeated themselves. The people, it says, simply refused to believe that the set of men who make it their business to palliate and defend Sir John's long career of subserviency to the Quebec hierarchy could be trusted to judge one in local politics of a similar taint. If Meredith had been supported by a few men of the stamp of McCarthy, who has proved his faith in equal rights by his works, the result would in all probability have been different. Yet another Conservative paper has made harsh talk of Meredith himself, suggesting his disposition. The Mail comes to his rescue also, declaring that if this is done the loss will not be Meredith's but that of the Opposition. Take him away and the Opposition will cease to exist, as he is the brains and moral force of it. An incident of the elections was one of Saturday at Stratford where by the loss of a wager T. B. Mothersgill wheeled Deputy Registrar Hay two blocks in a wheelbarrow on the public street. It is estimated that many thousands of dollars changed hands in Hamilton over the result of the election in that city. The canvass on both sides had shown a certain majority of about 1,200, which shows what dependence is to be placed on a canvass.

Shipwrecked on the Coast of Japan.

There arrived by the Parthia Wednesday, Mr. J. W. Newberry, who left New York some five months ago as second officer of the sailing ship Glendon, bound with a cargo of 69,000 cases of kerosene for Yokohama, Japan. The Glendon, which was a vessel of 1800 tons, was under the command of Capt. Thatcher, and the crew numbered 18. They sailed by way of the Cape of Good Hope and through the Gilola Pass, and were after 119 days' voyage (very quick time) almost at their destination, when one night in a thick fog the vessel went ashore on the Japanese coast. This was owing to miscalculation occasioned by the peculiarity of the currents in those waters. Fortunately all hands were saved, as well as a considerable portion of the cargo. At the point the vessel went ashore, about 45 miles from Yokohama, there was a small village named Shimonyaza, and Mr. Newberry says that the inhabitants were so anxious in rendering assistance that it seemed as if they could not do enough for the shipwrecked men. They furnished them with everything in their power, and could not be induced to take anything in return for the kindly aid they gave the crew. The natives even went so far as to vacate their own houses to accommodate the strangers. The crew remained at Shimonyaza for over a week and left it with the regret men feel at parting with old friends. Mr. Newberry came over on the Parthia and will probably go to Portland, Oregon, where he owns some property.

Sons of England.

Those gentlemen who wish to join the Sons of England Benefit Society are requested to meet in St. George's Hall, corner of Government and Bastion street next Thursday evening when the inauguration of the lodge will take place. The society is a purely Canadian one and is very popular in the east.

A Family Jar.

Mrs. Edward Kruse, a wife of only two weeks duration appeared in the police court this morning and swore out information against her husband praying that he might be bound over to keep the peace, as she was in fear of bodily hurt at his hands by reason of threats made by him against her. The case will be heard on Monday next.

Cape Flattery Sealers.

Dispatches from Port Townsend state that sealing schooners from around Cape Flattery are beginning to come in with catches. The schooner James Swan, in charge of Captain Tom Frazier and an Indian crew, came in Friday morning from Neah Bay with 402 skins, the biggest catch of the season. The schooner Lottie brought in 105 skins the same evening.

A Modern Name.

Neatly painted signs, with the words "Trounce Avenue" in white letters on a blue ground have been placed at each end of that convenient public way from Government to Broad streets. The old name of Trounce Alley will now sink into oblivion, and the more new and higher sounding title of Avenue will obtain in the future. It is more appropriate considering the fine buildings there at any rate.

The Grand Jury.

The grand jurymen who have not yet been discharged, were summoned today to appear in the case of White, the man who broke a Chinaman's leg at Esquimalt, and was committed for trial, but the Chinaman was not sufficiently recovered, and the hearing had to be further postponed. The slaughter house cases come up again on Tuesday, and if they are completed before the Chinamen gets better, White will likely be tried in the speedy trials court.

Dominion Candidates.

Precisely at noon Thursday in the Westminster court house, Dominion Returning Officer Armstrong called for nominations for the Ottawa Parliament to fill the vacancy existing in that district. There were but very few people present, and when the hour was up, the sheriff read the names of the nominees, which are: William H. Ladner, Gordon E. Corbould and William B. Townsend. No speeches were made, but at an early date the views of the different candidates will be given to the people of Westminster from the platform. The election will take place on Thursday the 19th inst.

R. C. Cathedral Bazaar.

The annual bazaar of the ladies of the R. C. Cathedral will be held in Philharmonic Hall on Wednesday and Thursday next, the 18th and 19th inst., when a number of useful articles will be offered for sale. The ladies are hard at work and are endeavoring to make it a bigger success than ever, although as all Victorians know it has always been a grand success. Luncheon will be served at noon of each day and refreshments throughout the day. A feature of the bazaar will be a fan drill by the young ladies and a swinging chorus by the evening. No doubt the hall will be filled on each day as the funds will be donated to the cathedral building fund.

They Want a Sunday Law.

The Post-Intelligencer says the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern people are making extensive preparations to transport passengers to Lake Samamish on Sunday who wish to attend the regatta, picnic and excursion. There will be coaches sufficient to accommodate 10,000 persons, and it is probable that fully that number will make the trip. Numerous excursion parties of young people have been organized, who will take their lunches with them and be prepared to enjoy the day. Seely and Bush were out on Lake Washington yesterday and had quite a lively spurt with the steamers Kirkland and C. C. Calkins. Bush succeeded in getting away with the Kirkland, but the Calkins was a little too much for Seeley. The latter did not feel very sore over it, however, as he asserts that the little craft is a regular flyer.

The Trustee Election.

The voters at the school trustee election to be held on Monday next, are not taking that interest in the matter that its importance deserves. They are apathetic and indifferent, a condition of public feeling—in view of the recent controversies on school affairs—that is rather surprising. In James Bay ward Messrs. Wolfenden and McConnan are candidates; in Yates street ward, Mr. Walker and Dr. Morrison will be opponents; but in Johnson street ward, the largest and most intelligent ward in the city, no candidate has yet announced himself. We are informed, however, that Mr. F. G. Richards, jr., having been pressed to run, has consented to stand for election. It is absurd for the electors to find fault with the school management, which is rotten at its roots, the political heads of the department) if they do not take every opportunity in their power to rectify abuses and to restrain the contrafficing policy of the Government. We hold that the Government, through their officials, are dragging our schools down into the political mire and it behooves the people to purge the board by electing men who have the cause of education at heart. The Invertebrates and the partisans have no business there.

GREAT VICTORY GAINED.

FOUR CITIES SOLID AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.

Colonel Baker Defeated in Kootenay—The Premier Falls to Second Place in His District—The Finance Minister Takes Fourth Place in Victoria.

The returns from the districts throughout the Province show that yesterday's elections have considerably flattened out the Government majority and that the composition of the next House will be materially changed. Hon. John Robson has failed to second place in his district, the Finance Minister has fallen to fourth in Victoria and Col. Baker, the great protege of the Government, is, as far as known, defeated in Kootenay. The Opposition and Independents have gained immensely, and will have the assistance of such able men as Cotton of Vancouver, Brown of New Westminster, McKenzie of Nanaimo, and Milne of Victoria in the next assembly. The opponents of the Government with such pronounced support from the four cities, have great reason to feel satisfied.

VICTORIA CITY.

The election in the capital was of a lively nature. A few friends of the candidates of both sides worked hard for their tickets and a fairly good vote was polled although it was not as large as was expected. The Government forces made a determined effort to win and with their great resources of men and money at their back were able to do very effective work. This being the capital, the influence which the party in power could bring to its aid was naturally very great. As soon as the poll door opened at 8 a. m., a great many ballots were immediately cast. A large number of men on the C. P. N. steamers came up in a body and voted, the regular steamers having been held to enable the hands to exercise the franchise. The Albion Iron Works, in which some of the Government candidates had influence, only ran in the morning. In the afternoon a half holiday was declared and a large number of the men turned out to hustle up voters. Some of these did good work. They had evidently located their men before the day of election and went straight for them and brought them in in carriages.

The Opposition worked hard to elect four men. The calculation from the first was that they started out with a certainty of electing Messrs. Grant and Beaven, and that they would put in the other two gentlemen on the ticket by a little effort. The contest proceeded spiritedly all day, but with good nature. A few incidents out of the ordinary occurred at the polls, where votes were lost through attempts at illegal voting. Another interesting feature of the proceedings was to watch the process of an illiterate voter, who did not know how to mark his ballot, being shown how to do it. It made a farce of the ballot. When the poll closed, a number of two to one wagers were made that Mayor Grant was at the head of the poll. The count, which proceeded very closely; and as the end was neared, demonstrated that the Government candidates were badly defeated, and it was only the presence of Mr. Wilson in the field that prevented a clean sweep being made.

Mr. Wilson took a very large number of votes from Dr. Milne and Mr. Frank Richards both. If he had been out of the field, or had Mr. Wilson been on the opposition ticket, with no other candidate drawing from him the Hon. Mr. Turner would have been an ex-finance minister to-day. The Opposition no doubt held together as well as the Government party and their unity would have been sufficient to show every ministerialist under if they had not been deceived into voting for Mr. Wilson, who came to be considered as an out and out Oppositionist. A feature of the contest was the immense vote polled by Mayor Grant. It was larger than the most sanguine of his friends expected. When the count which was very slow and which will have to be improved upon in future, was concluded the returning officer declared John Grant, Robt. Beaven, Dr. G. L. Milne, and Hon. J. H. Turner duly elected.

In response to calls from the crowd who were present the successful and defeated candidates made short speeches, the former thanking the electors for their handsome vote and the latter for those who had worked for them. Mayor Grant referred to the gentlemanly nature of the contest and said he believed those who opposed him did so conscientiously. Messrs. Beaven, Milne and Turner were thankful for the handsome support they had received, but the Finance Minister hinted that he would have liked it to have been a little better. The vote was as follows:

John Grant	1,326
Robert Beaven	[illegible]
Dr. G. L. Milne	[illegible]
Hon. J. H. Turner	[illegible]
Capt. Jas. Irving	[illegible]
F. G. Richards, jr.	[illegible]
S. Peck	[illegible]
Charles Wilson	[illegible]
Wm. Dalby	[illegible]

It was 2 p. m. before the last ballot had been counted. The plumpers given were: Captain Irving, 51; Wilson, 14; Grant, 12; Peck, 12; Milne, 7; Dalby 3; Richards, 2; Turner, 2; Beaven, 1. There were 34 rejected ballots, 9 spoiled, and 2 improperly endorsed; ballots used, 1,365.

VICTORIA DISTRICT.

As expected the two Government candidates, Eberts and Anderson, were returned. The vote polled by Mr. Carey, however, falling a single hundred votes, shows that the anti-machine vote was very far from unanimous. The vote was as follows:

D. M. Eberts	178
G. W. Anderson	171
J. W. Carey	1[illegible]

NEW WESTMINSTER CITY.

The contest here was between straight Government and Opposition parties, the Government represented by Sam. Thos. Cunningham, the Opposition or Independent forces by Mayor Brown. The majority for Mr. Brown is large. Big appropriations for court-house and insane asylum could not save the Government in a large constituency like this, and their candidate fell 209 in the minority. The vote was: S. Brown, 530; J. Cunningham, 321.

NEW WESTMINSTER DISTRICT.

The contest here was between three Government and five Oppositionists—the Government candidates being Robson, Henderson and Kirkland. Of the other five Herring and Sinclair were from New Westminster city and district and appear not to have had much show with the local men. The contest in this district was fought out pretty much on the general policy of the Government, the Redistribution question playing no important part. The district is satisfied with what representatives it has got and therefore did not make this an issue with the lower Mainland cities. The result is about as good for the Opposition as expected, considering the number of candidates who were running on that platform. The official count is:

T. R. Kitchen	541
Hon. John Robson	536
Jas. Punch	493
C. B. Sword	473
John Kirkland	458
J. C. Henderson	340
A. M. Herring	99
M. Sinclair	85

First three elected.

VANCOUVER CITY.

The contest here was a hot one, big efforts being put forth by the Government and its friends to defeat Mr. Cotton, of the News-Advertiser. There were hardly any Government candidates running in this constituency. When the campaign opened there were two, Messrs. McConnell and Fox. Mr. McConnell wisely dropped out of sight a few days ago and Mr. Fox, a very estimable gentleman, who stuck up for the party to the last, it will be observed, is just visible to the naked eye and no more. His vote is recorded at the bottom of the row. Mr. Sam. Greer, it will be seen, came very near being elected. Mr. Horne, who is just above him, is the gentleman who, when accused of having the Premier visit his committee rooms a few weeks ago, caused his secretary to publish a card to the effect that he had not spoken to the Hon. Mr. Robson for three months, much less associated with him. In this large constituency also the corrupting influences of the Government could not turn enough votes and the result of the poll is as follows:

F. C. Cotton	1123
J. W. Horne	693
Samuel Greer	649
R. G. Tatlow	474
James Orr	135
J. M. Fox	33

NANAIMO DISTRICT.

The contest in Nanaimo district was practically between oppositionists, Messrs. McKenzie and Walkem being strongly opposed to the Government and Mr. Foster an independent running on the same platform as Mr. Keith in Nanaimo city, who has declared himself since his election as opposed to the present Government. It is reported that there were eleven spoilt ballots at Wellington and that Dr. Walkem will claim a recount. The vote was as follows:

T. Foster	162
C. C. McKenzie	156
Dr. Walkem	153

COWICHAN DISTRICT.

The contest in this district was between three supporters of the Government. Messrs. Davie and Croft were to have been elected by acclamation, but through an error of some kind Mr. Joe McDonald of Quamichan decided to stand, and an election contest was result. The vote was as follows:

Hon. Theo. Davie	179
Henry Croft	143
J. McDonald	102

COMOX DISTRICT.

Joseph Hunter of the E. & N. railway company opposed on behalf of the Government Mr. D. McPhee, a local man. Mr. Hunter's connection with the railway was a big thing in his favor, as the people of Comox are very anxious for the extension of the road, if they were led to believe that by electing Mr. Hunter they could come any nearer accomplishing that object, it is sufficient to account for his majority. Mr. McPhee who opposed him is a very fine man and a very popular man. Some of his friends thought he would win because he looked so much like Mayor Grant, who is a winner from away back, but these matters are not regulated by looks or some candidates, say in Cowichan, would have been—well, not hung, but punished long ago. The result of the vote is as follows:

J. Hunter	113
D. McPhee	73

EAST KOOTENAY.

Col. Baker, one of the Government's right hand men is undoubtedly defeated in this district. Rogers Pass, Field, Golden, Donald and Beaver Mouth give Mr. Law a majority of 45. The only places that remain to be heard from are Windermere, Fort Steele and Cranbrook which will increase Mr. Law's majority considerably. Cranbrook is Col. Baker's home and will give him some half-dozen votes, which is all that are there, while the other two places where Mr. Law makes his headquarters, by the same reasoning will go solid for him. The vote so far is as follows:

C. Law (Opp.)	157
Col. J. Baker	112

WEST KOOTENAY.

As far as heard from this district is against the Government, the candidates of the administration being away down in the list. The vote was as follows:

James M. Kellie (Ind)	20
W. M. Brown (Opp.)	22
J. W. Haskins (Govt)	22
A. S. Farwell (Govt)	7

ESQUIMALT.

This district gives Higgins and Pooley majorities over Helgesen. Sidewalks and the extension of the tramway were made to do good service for the Government candidates in the Esquimalt end of the district, though there was no particular reason why the latter should have such effect. Mr. Helgesen having no one to run with him from Esquimalt proper was badly handicapped in the contest. His strong personal friends in order not to assist the opposing candidates had to plump for him. The vote was as follows:

D. W. Higgins	157
C. E. Pooley	134
Hans Helgesen	89

LILLOOET.

Out of the seven stations of this large district only two had been heard from—Lac La Hache and Clinton. The vote was as follows:

D. A. Stoddart (Opp.)	97
A. W. Smith (Gov)	77
W. Morrison (Gov.)	49

CARIBOO.

In this district four Government candidates were running. The result so far as known was:

Joseph Mason	122
Hon. Jos. Robson	113
R. A. Rogers	104
W. Pinchbeck	74

YALE.

The returns from eight stations—Kamloops, Hope, Spence's Bridge, Mara's Slough, Asheroft, Yale, Sicamous and Salmon Arm—out of thirty one contained in the district give the following results:

G. B. Martin	240
Hon. F. G. Vernon	230
C. E. Semlin	194
J. Wardle	167
A. Irwin	99

NOTES.

The districts which are yet to be heard from are Alberni and the Islands. The latter will probably send an Independent.

Mr. Keith's election by acclamation has already been announced.

The Next Assembly.

The composition of the next House will be about as follows:

	Govt.	Opp.	Ind.
Victoria City	1	3	0
Nanaimo, City	0	0	1
